

For those who love life

This project, themed "For Women Who Love Life," develops an integrated software platform that provides convenient and personalized services for women, aiming to improve quality of life and user efficiency. We break through the limitations of traditional single-function applications by adopting a cross-disciplinary integrated design approach. The platform combines entertainment-oriented horoscope analysis, practical health recommendations, consumer-focused beauty information, and financial stock analysis into one system, creating a multifunctional lifestyle assistant platform.

By observing daily life situations and analyzing user needs, we identified the necessity of integrating various functions into the system. We then collected and organized relevant data, while also incorporating random simulation mechanisms to supplement real-time information.
